

OVERVIEW

Our History curriculum is grounded in current historical scholarship. This ensures that students are taught representative narratives and develop a comprehensive understanding of the past in Britain and the wider world. Students engage directly in the discipline of history; they learn how to construct written arguments to different historical questions and to interrogate interpretations critically. In Y7, students explore the complex connections of the medieval world. From the distribution of power to the spread of knowledge and disease, they study the forces that shaped lives in England and throughout the world.

Our History curriculum is grounded in current historical scholarship. This ensures that students are taught representative narratives and develop a comprehensive understanding of the past in Britain and the wider world. Students engage directly in the discipline of history; they learn how to construct written arguments to historical questions and to interrogate interpretations critically. In Y8, students study Britain's transformation into an industrial, imperialist world power. From civil war to slavery, they confront the destruction caused by the desire to dominate and the resilience of those who resisted.

Our History curriculum is grounded in current historical scholarship. This ensures that students are taught representative narratives and develop a comprehensive understanding of the past in Britain and the wider world. Students engage directly in the discipline of history; they learn how to construct written arguments to historical questions and to interrogate interpretations critically. In Y9, students study how imperialist agendas led to decades of devastating conflict and demands for change. From resisting regimes to equal rights, they study those who fought for reform and whose campaigns resonate today.

OVERVIEW

Students begin their GCSE with a thematic study of medicine through time. This consolidates their KS3 learning of how far and why life in Britain has changed from 1250-present, through the lens of changes in science, medicine and healthcare. Having arrived in the modern period, students spend the latter half of Y10 delving into the turbulent twentieth-century experience of the USA. Beginning with the civil rights movement and ending with American involvement in Vietnam, students investigate how a country that spent £100billion bombing Vietnam could allow for the under-funding of basic amenities for black Americans at home?

OVERVIEW

Students begin Y11 by placing the conflicts the USA faced at home and abroad in the wider context of the Cold War. They examine how global superpowers cooperated and collided from 1941-91 in their attempts to 'reshape' the world. Finally, students conclude their GCSE course by zooming in to a depth study of early Elizabethan England, where religious tension, foreign sabotage and state-sponsored piracy all existed as prominent features of a divided society. Drawing together their studies of societies divided by time and space, yet united by often similar experiences, students then spend their final half term preparing for their exams.
